

Enjoyment of Sufi music and insights into Sufi traditions in the United States and India are explored during the July 12 SPAN Sufi Music Program at the Sri Sathya Sai International Centre in New Delhi. The program includes Indian and American experts, such as Fulbright research scholar Christopher Holland, who gives his perspective on Sufism's relevance to America's increasingly multicultural society and illustrates its beauty in photographs such as these. The woman in the photos remains still, listening, as the singers move.